

ABSTRACT

A barricade contains at least one extendable beam. The beams are movable between a non-extended position in which they substantially rest within the footprint of a barricade frame and an extended position in which they extend away from the barricade frame. The beams may contain connecting mechanism which enable the beams of like barricades to be connected, thereby creating a longer barricade.